INTRODUCTION

Since 1966, when Elizabeth Blodgett Hall established Simon’s Rock on 200 acres of her family’s property in bucolic Great Barrington, this singular College has relied on friends and supporters to remain viable. For more than 50 years, Simon’s Rock has occupied a unique space in the educational landscape, practicing the radical idea that many students are ready for college at a younger age. Breaking from the conventional chronology, for these students, is to choose an education defined by rigorous critical inquiry, adventurous expression, and active exploration of the self and world. We have been fortunate to align with donors at every level who believe in the promise of Simon’s Rock and are inspired by our results. Our model is proven by the success of thought leaders and entrepreneurs who occupy the frontlines of social change and who credit Simon’s Rock as a critical moment in their development. Perhaps even more impressively, given our modest scale, we are 14th among U.S. colleges whose BA students go on to complete doctoral degrees.

This report highlights our supporters in Fiscal Year 2020—July 1, 2019 through June 30, 2020. Though our fundraising efforts ran headlong into COVID-19 and the many changes it necessitated in instruction, outreach, and connection, donors recommitted to Simon’s Rock and helped us to close the College’s budget gaps. On behalf of faculty, staff, and students, we thank you for your generosity.

As we write, the challenges of COVID-19 are still very much with us. Despite this and with deliberation and enormous caution, we resumed on-campus instruction and residential life for the fall 2020 semester. Once again, we rose to the challenge of meeting the educational needs of students who were not being well-served elsewhere. We had Betty Hall’s original vision for Simon’s Rock very much in mind: to create an oasis for younger scholars whose intellectual and personal development is deeply tied to forging community.

We thank all our donors for their faith and trust in Simon’s Rock. The coming year promises opportunities for important innovation as well as unprecedented financial challenges—both arising from the same source. We hope we can count on you for continuing support, and we thank you for all you do for Simon’s Rock and its students.
